

Eloquent and Grateful

	Find these two books in the Library and find out why our planet is so delicate: 1. Frozen Planet - A world beyond imagination by Alistair Fothergill and Vanessa Berlowitz. 2. 50 Ideas you really need to know Earth by Martin Redfern.
	BBC Teach secondary geography – watch 10 clips from the BBC Teach YouTube page (secondary geography) and make notes on each clip to show your findings. You can select any 10 videos you like. https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=PLcvEcrsF_9zIYkvR_YiTIQ2DkYa8-WdkX

Attentive and Compassionate

	Using the BBC Sounds website or app listen to episodes 1-4 of the 'Under the Weather' series https://www.bbc.co.uk/sounds/series/p0617v7g 01: Should we still be worried about the ozone layer? 02: How long could we survive without ice? 03: What would a nuclear winter look like? 04: Could climate modification save the planet? When you have finished listening, summarise the information you have learnt in 10 bullet points.
	Using your own knowledge, the internet or book research, create your own practical guide to surviving climate change. Consider how you will be able to survive in the extreme climatic conditions that might exist. Things you might want to include: How you will get food, water and energy? What will your shelter look like? What changes might you have to make to your lifestyle to survive? Advice to others on what they can do to reduce the future climate change impacts

Wise & Curious and Faith-filled & Prophetic

	Create an anti waste display using waste materials Using recycled materials, create a unique poster which we can display around our school site to help raise awareness on how to reduce our waste and why this is important. For inspiration, take a look at the display outside Miss Dodd's classroom – Room 14. You could use plastic bottles, cardboard boxes, bottle wrappers and so much more....
